SHORT OF CASH.

[Luke Sharp in Detroit Free Press.]

Philip Gilbert Hammerton says: 'Let me observe, to begin with, that although the pursuit of wealth is not favorable to the intellectual life, the unconveniences of poverty are even less favorable to it.'

Let me observe to begin with, right you are P. G.; right you are.

One Sunday in London, it struck me that it wouldn't be a bad idea to go down to the office on the Strand and finish up some correspondence that was long over due. I would be assisted by the quiet and freedom from interruption that I was certain of on that day, so about 11 o'clock I went to the Hammersmith railway station and found it closed. The London railways are in the habit of closing down during church time, although they run enough trains the rest of the day to make up for this spasm of Sunday observance. I had forgotten this freak on the part of the railway people, and so took a 'bus instead.

If that railway station had been opened this would not have been written, for the price of a return ticket was more than the amount I had in my pocket. I would have remembered that I had left my purse in the pocket I wore on week days, and would have gone back for it.

Now, a seat beside the driver on a Hammersmith 'bus on a fine morning is something not to be despised. You go along through Kensington and past Hyde Park and into Piccadilly, and so to Charing Cross and the city. It is about as interesting an hour's ride as you can wish to have.

'Where for, sir?'

'Charing Cross.'

'Sixpence, please.'

'Sixpence it is,' and I dived down into my pocket and up came the nimble sixpence. That reticent coin, however, never told me that all that it left there was just two pennies and one half-penny. After the silver piece had passed into the hands of the 'bus conductor we rolled merrily along and I had no idea that I would soon be called to face the pangs of direst poverty.

I wrote away in the office until the bells tolled 2, and feeling the necessity for a square meal, I went into a cafe that was generally crowded on week days, but was almost empty on Sunday. I don't know why I ordered such a sumptuous dinner—probably because I felt a certain satisfaction at having accomplished some work that should have been done long before—but, be that as it may—I ordered a "blow-the-expense" dinner, and only felt sorry I had no genial friend with me to share it.

When the waiter brought me the bill I glanced at it and put my hand down the trouser pocket, on the right. Net result, 2½p. I searched all my pockets in the vain hope that they might yield the unexpected cash that a careless man leaves around his clothes. Net result—same old tuppence ha'penny.

'Waiter, would you have the kindness to ask the proprietor to step this way?'

'Proprietor, sir? Yes sir, certainly, sir. Nothing wrong I 'ope, sir?'

'Nothing whatever. Merely wish to express my gratification.'

The proprietor came up smiling and rubbing his hands one over the other. Now I particularly distrust a man who smiles and rubs his hands, and I said to myself 'I'm going to have trouble with this man.'

'Good afternoon. I wanted to say to you that rarely have I enjoyed a dinner as well as the one I have just finished.'

'I am very glad you are satisfied, sir. We try to please our customers, sir. Hope you will come again, sir.'

'As things look at present I rather think I'll have to. But what I wanted to see you particularly for was—I hope I'm not detaining you too long?'

'Oh, not at all, sir—not at all. Sunday's a very light day with us, sir.'

'Then that's all right. Well, as I was saying, I thought I'd try a chestnut on you if you had the time.'

'A chestnut, sir?'

'Yes, in America we call an old story or an old joke a chestnut. Whenever an enemy gets off what he thinks is a good joke, we simply remark 'chestnut,' and that crushes him.'

'Ah, I see sir; very good sir.'

'Well, this chestnut you've perhaps heard before. Everybody has in America. A fellow put up at a first-class hotel, ordered a fine dinner and the best of wine. Having dined exceedingly well he called for the landlord. 'Landlord,' he said, 'I suppose lots of dead beats come to your house?'

'Well, a few.'

'What do you do when a man has no money—is a deat beat, in fact?'

'Do? Why I kick him out.'

'At this the guest rose, went to the door, and looking over his shoulder at the landlord, said:

'Kick.'

'It was a few moments before the landlord comprehended that the fellow had no money, but when the fact was clear he vigorously kicked him into the middle of the street.'

'Very good,' cried the cafe proprietor. 'Very good indeed. I never heard that story before.'

'Oh, that's not all the story. Six months after the fellow appeared at the same hotel.'

'Don't you remember kicking me out?' he said to the landlord. 'Well, that's all right. I don't bear any grudge. Made $100,000 since then. Come, you shall dine with me this time. I dined at your expense last time.'

'So they had a grand dinner and the best champagne in the house The landlord apologized several times for his former rudeness, but the trayeler insisted he did just right—would have done the same himself under the circumstances. Finally, as the last bottle was drained, he said to the landlord:

'Hope you enjoyed your dinner.'

'Oh, immensely.'

'All right, then. Kick again.'

'That's the end. Beat him twice, you see. Now, that's where he had the advantage of me. I have merely got ahead of you to the extent of one dinner.'

'How's that, sir.'

'What do you do with a fellow who can't pay?'

'Give him in charge of the police,' said the proprietor, eying me severely.

The chestnut was beginning to work on him.

'Then he has to do any kicking that's done himself. Well, I haven't the money to pay for this meal. Will you trust me until this time to-morrow?'

I expected there would be a fuss, but there wasn't. I presume the native honesty stamped indelibly on my face told him he would lose nothing. I felt very grateful to him and we had a glass of champagne on it on Monday.

I went back to the office and worked till nightfall. I had dined so well that I thought I would never be hungry again, but when I got out into the cool night air I found that I needed a lunch. I wanted to keep a penny so that if the railway clerk refused me credit for a Hammersmith ticket I could buy a third-class ticket—and at least get on the train. So my available resources were three half-pence. It surprised me to learn that I could make a good meal on that sum. There was a shop in the window of which sizzled a great number of sausages over a gas stove. I went in and made inquiries. I found that for three half-pence I could have sausage and mashed potatoes or fried fish and mashed potatoes. I was not hungry enough to risk my precious life on cheap sausages, so I took the fish instead. Both fish and potatoes were excellent.

The next thing was to 'beat' my way back to Hammersmith. I asked for credit at the ticket window, and was politely and with reasonable firmness refused. I somehow received the impression that it was not by giving credit the District Railway paid its dividends. I stepped back, and waited a few moments, joined the procession at the window, and when once more in front of the clerk I slammed down my penny, saying:

'Westminster. Third. Single.'

With equal promptness the ticket was thrust me and with it I passed the barrier, and so got on the Hammersmith train.

I entered a first-class carriage with a third-class penny ticket in my pocket. I had three fellow-passengers. As it was Sunday night the chances were that no ticket inspector would trouble us. If he did, I felt that I was lost. There was a white card in my pocket. First-class tickets on the underground are white. I resolved to take another step in crime, so I tore a bit of the white card to about the size of a return half of a ticket. This I put in my vest pocket—for emergencies.

Sure enough, at Victoria Station a polite inspector swung himself into our compartment.

'Tickets, gentlemen, if you please.'

Four thumbs and four fingers went indolently down into four vest-pockets and brought up four bits of white paper.

'Thank you, gentlemen.'

The door banged shut. The country was saved. I would here like to call the attention of any young man desirous of getting on and prospering in a career of villiany and deception, to the advisability of acting as near as possible like the honest act under similar circumstances. I pulled out the bit of bogus pasteboard in just the same manner I had hundreds of times showed genuine tickets—neither delaying or hurrying. If I had pretended to be asleep or to have lost my ticket or tried any such ruse I would at once have a roused the man's suspicions, and once that was done the game would be up. Until a false move was made on my part, the inspector performed his duties with a certain automaticness, if I may so term it. Those of you who expect to reach Newgate—to plagiarize my friend Artemus Ward—will see the philosophy of this.

To the ticket-taker at Hammersmith I said:

'I have traveled from Charing Cross here. I have no ticket except the penny one that let me on the train. How much do I owe you?'

He named the sum—nine pence, I think.

'I have no money. If you send a porter with me to my rooms I will pay the fare and also make it square with him.'

The porter came along with me, and so ended my day of poverty.

Thus it is that I agree with Mr. Hammerton—that the inconveniences of poverty are not exactly favorable to intellectual life.

A Peninsula.

The remnants of half-forgotten studies are sometimes brought to light in a strangely dilapidated condition. So it proved in the following dialogue overheard at a country railway station. The speakers were father and son, the latter a middle-aged man.

It seems that the father had been visiting an adjoining town, and, having there heard loud praises of Florida as a residence, was wildly enthusiastic over the advantages to be gained in moving South. The son, more cautious than the older man, was inclined to scoff at the credulity of the latter.

'Why, the circulars say there ain't no sich place anywhere!' declared the father, his words almost stumbling over one another in their eagerness to escape.

'Circulars! a passle o' lies!' said the son, deftly piling milk-cans in his wagon, 'you don't mean to swaller everything that's printed, do you?'

'Well, but they say if you buy a lot of orange trees that's pooty well along, you can set right down side of 'em an' fold your arms, an' they'll make your fortune quicker'n no time.'

'A heap they will! Look here, dad, you clear the stones out o' the four-acre lot, and plant 'taters there, an' you'll be better on't than if you had a million orange trees!'

'An' the climate! the air's as clear—'

'Clear where 'taint all thick with skeeters big as your thumb, an' grasshoppers like wharf-rats!'

'The sea-coast ain't many miles away from any p'int, as I take it, an' the mountains—'

This was too much. The young man's long-unused knowledge of geography came to his rescue; he had found a flaw which could not fail in proving the vaunted circulars false.

'Mountains!' he cried, triumphantly. 'Mountains! Why, man, Florida's a peninsula!'

The father said no more, but it was evident that his disappointment in finding his castle shattered was tempered by his pride in his son's superior knowledge.

Eating Before Sleeping.

Among the novelties suggested by certain physicians is a recommendation to eat before retiring at night. At first the sleep will be heavy and the dreams disturbed; but eventually, it is claimed, a full stomach will cause drowsiness and the food will digest better. The blood, it is argued, being drawn to the stomach, incites to slumber, because the pressure upon the brain is thereby relieved. Actors, it is said, eat heartily after a performance and find it advantageous to do so. Our English progenitors, in a past generation, partook of late and hearty suppers, and lived quite as long as their descendants. Late dinners are still the custom in England, and then in hot countries it is always the custom to take a siesta after a heavy midday meal. Animals generally sleep after eating. It is doubtful, however, if these theories will succeed in changing the habits of the American people. Outside of the large cities, the midday meal is the principal one, and the supper, or tea, is partaken of several hours before retiring. Man is a creature of habit, and he had better follow the customs of a lifetime. Still, it is probably true that persons suffering from indigestion would advantage themselves if they could take a nap after a heavy meal.

BOX OR COX.

The Brunswick Hotel is no more the Water Office than the High School building is the City Hall, but there are people who are determined not to understand this. An average of half a dozen per day walk into the office of the hotel, plank their money down on the counter and call out:

'I want to pay the water tax on No. 254 Blank street.'

When the affable clerks inform them that they have made a mistake, which is only what an affable clerk should do there is a feeling on the part of these people that they have somehow been abused, and they go off mad.

Two or three weeks ago a very stern-faced man, carrying himself very rigidly, entered the hotel, rapped on the counter with his knuckles, and icily observed:

'I'll never pay it—never!'

'What?' asked Clerk Brown.

'That infernal water tax! You can sue and be hanged!'

'This is not the Water Office.'

'It isn't?'

'No, sir; you'll have to go down four doors'

'But if this is not the Water Office what do you have the sign up for?'

'We have no such sign.'

'Well, it looks like the place.'

'Not at all, sir. Please call four doors below.'

'I'll be durned if I do! Why didn't you tell me when I first came in that this was a hotel?'

'I supposed you knew it.'

'Oh, well, perhaps you will make some thing by this and perhaps you won't.'

A week later the stern faced man entered the Water Office one morning, reached his hand through the window to one of the clerks, and said:

'Shake, old boy, I was out of temper that morning, and have been very sorry for it. Odd wasn't it, that I came into this hotel instead of the Water Office? You treated me like a gentleman, and I beg your pardon!'

'I—I don't understand,' replied the clerk.

'Why, I came into this hotel one morning not long ago, and——'

'But this is no hotel. This is the Water Office.'

'But why don't you put up a sign?'

'There's one at the door, sir?'

'And where's the hotel?'

'Please call four doors above.'

'I won' do it! No, sir—never. See you hung first! Good morning sir—never will I pay that infernal tax if I die for it!'—Detroit Free Press.

Gold from a Kitchen Stove.

'I know a man,' said a cable car passenger, 'who came to Chicago three years ago when he was just of age, without a dollar. He hired out to a butcher and delivered meat from a basket which he carried on his shoulder. It was hard work, and the young countryman didn't get fat on it, but he kept his eyes open and resolved to improve the first opportunity to better his condition. As butcher boy he went much into alleys and back yards, and there noticed that the ash piles which came from the house stoves had a good deal of coal in them. He bought a hand-cart with his savings, resigned from the butcher shop, and went around and made arrangements with house holders to draw their ashes away. His charges were surprisingly low, and by hard work he managed to earn a dollar and a half in this way. But this was only half his earnings. He rigged up a sieve through which he screened all the ashes he hauled, and the coal thus secured was worth about a dollar and a half more. He then went into the business on a larger scale, hiring laborers and furnishing them carts and rigging up a large screen where load after load could be dumped. He has boys to pick out the cinders and clinkers and wagons to haul the coal away and sell it. He now hauls unsifted ashes away for nothing, but charges for removing sifted ashes. A good many people who used to sift their ashes don't do it now, saving themselves the trouble and getting the refuse hauled away for nothing. That butcher boy is making about $3,000 a year.'

A Western man applied for a pension on the ground that he was badly injured by a Confederate "ram" during the war. Investigation showed that he was a sutler in the army, and while out on a foraging expedition with some of the boys, was painfully butted through a fence by an old sheep of the male persuasion, the property of a Confederate officer.

Marrying Under Difficulties.

James Spooney, vulgarly called by his neighboring Spooney Jim, was the son of a well-to-do farmer in the state of P——. At the time he is introduced to the reader he is in his twenty-eighth year. He had never been very far from home, consequently had seen very little of the world. He was an industrious, harmless young man, whose fortune could never be made by his beauty. He was very tall, thin, and remarkably awkward, with small, dull-looking blue eyes of so pale a hue that they looked as if the color was faded out, abundant red hair, florid complexion, and large, course features.

However, there is no accounting for taste, for Jemima Jenkins, the daughter of an adjoining farmer, declared he was 'jist the handsumist man she ever cast eyes upon.'

Now, James had a great admiration for the young damsel, who in her personal appearance was as little favored as himself. She was a stout, tow-headed girl, with a freckled skin, which looked as if the flies had been sporting with it. The ill-natured in the neighborhood who knew of their courtship earnestly hoped they might come together in matrimony, arguing that it would be a pity to spoil a good-looking couple with either.

One bright, sunny Sabbath afternoon in mid-summer, as Jim was lying upon the grass in front of the door of his father's house planning for the future, one of the first things that occurred to him was that he should get married.

'Dad's sot on it,' he thought, 'and so is mam, and I ort tu try and please 'em—it's time. I could rent old Jake Spangler's farm, and the money I've got inter the bank 'ill stock it, and Mimie's daddy he'll furnish the house like he did fur Mat Bunn, who married her sister Sally Ann. I think I'll jist go over to old Jenkins' and ask her—there's nothin' like strikin' while the iron's hot.'

Suiting the action to the word he sprang up and started for the house, and neatly attired himself, putting some extra touches to his toilet before starting on his important mission. He looked decidedly gay when he had attired himself in his long grey linen coat, bright red waistcoat, straw hat, with a blue ribbon around it, short, very wide, linen pants, and large heavy shoes. He made fast time as he crossed his father's farm, jumping fences and ditches until he found himself upon 'Squire Jenkins' land. As he neared the house he beheld his divinity sitting upon a grassy mound, beneath a large willow tree, some little distance from the house.

'O! glorious opportunity,' thought Jim. 'I kin just settle the matter now, makin' short work on it.'

As he approached he felt a slight trembling of the limbs, a nervous sensation, but he made up his mind that he was not going to be frightened from his purpose.

'A gal kin only say no, to du her wust, and there's pleuty on 'em if she dus. They are jist as thick as blackberries—I kin git another if she's contrary.'

Summoning up his courage he shouted:

'Hallo, Mimie! be it you? How does yer be?'

'Fust rate, Jim! how be yer? I am glad yer come, fur I've been lookin' for yer.'

'The purtty crittur, she's jist a bustin' with luv' fur me!' soliloquized the lover.

'Is yer dog tied up, Mimie?' asked Jim, 'fur I'm afeard uv that cuss,' looking nervously around. ''Tother night as Bill Jones an' me was going home from here, he takes arter us. Bill he's purtty spry, he has sich big feet he kin git over ground very handy, but jist as he went to jump over the horse-trough, he tripped, and in he goes. He hollered tu me fur help, but, laws! I jist keeps clear out of his way, when the tarnal critter leaves Bill and makes fur me, and hangs on tu my coat tail with sich a grip that when I managed to shake him off he had the whole uv my spankin' new coat tail inter his big jaws! Bill he jist stood and laughed fit to split hisself. He wus mad cause he got a duckin'.'

'Sakes alive! yer might haye bin kilt,' said Jemima. 'I'll coax dad to shoot him.'

'Mima,' said Jim, anxious to proceed to business, whilst his face became as red as a beet, 'I want tu ask yer somethin' pertikilar. Yer kin either say yes or no, but uv course I'd sooner it was yes. Dad wants me tu git married and so does mam, and I reckon you'd do jist as well as any one else, so I jist thought I'd ask yer.'

Jemima simpered and hung her head—at last she said:

'There's Lydia Ann Blinker yer could git.'

'Won't have her—'cause she's lame.'

'Well, Sally Jane Grubb—how du yer like her?'

'She won't do, cause she talks through her nose.'

'There's Ruthie Simpkins, won't she suit yer?'

'No, she won't now, cause she's blind in one eye.'

'Yer jist tu pertickaleer, Jim!' said Mima, delighted to think he preferred her to all others. 'I won't praise another gal tu yer. You don't want tu get married anyhow. What's the use of yer foolin'?'

'Did the gal mean to say no? Lor, women wus so queer,' he soliloquized, and backed off, alarmed at Mimie's manner, knocking, as he did so, against and upsetting a hornet's nest, which so enraged the inmates that they made a grand attack upon him.

'Oh, Jemima! Jemima! Jem!—take 'em off; oh, blazes, oh!' and before she could realize the situation, he rushed by like a flying machine, beating his limbs with his straw hat, his red hair blazing in the sunlight.

There was no time for love or romance with poor Jim now—the situation was practical.

'Bless my stars!' cried the terrified Jemima, 'Jim Spooney has jist gone mad. Stop, Jim, stop, for the land sake, stop!'

Not knowing what course to pursue, she stood looking in dismay after her swiftly departing lover. As he attempted to cross a creek he fell in, and some of his vicious enemies found a watery grave. Others angrily clung to him. As he mounted a fence, and was about clearing it, an unmannerly bull (doubtless attracted by his red waistcoat), gave him a toss with his horns sending him far into the meadow beyond. This last shot through the air, rocket-like, was the final view Jemima had of her lover.

There poor James lay for some time, smarting with pain, anger and disappointment. When he reached home, although rid of his enemies, they had left their traces behind them. His head was swelled to twice its size, one eye was entirely closed, whilst his lips were a sight to behold.

'I'll not let Mimie go. I'll hang on though if she should die I would'nt try agin to git another gal. It's too much bother, but I'll be spunky this yer time, see if I don't.'

'Yer jist right, Jimmy,' said his fond mother, to whom these confidential remarks were made, looking woefully at her spectacle of a son. 'Never give up. Yer dad didn't when he came a courtin' me, I tell yer. I jist had to marry him to git shut uv him. The next time you go to see Mimie, don't go ashamed like through the back yard, but go to the fron uv their house like a man, and as fur the gal that's the way big folks do.'

So the next time he took his mother's advice, and arranged matters so satisfactorily with Jemima that it is reported they are to be married in the autumn by 'Squire Bellows.

He took her to a neighboring town to a circus a short time ago, and they were seen indulging in spruce beer and eating ice-cream out of the same dish in a loving manner.

They looked very happy as they walked through the main street hand in hand—and in view of these extravagances, the report of their approaching bliss is probably correct, and Miss Jenkins will be Mrs. Spooney.

Mr. Gould's Manner of Exercising.

They tell a story in his office about Mr. Gould's resolving, on the advice of his physician two years ago, to exercise.

'I don't wish you to exercise violently," said the doctor; all you need to do is to practice mild calisthenics an hour every day.'

'All right,' said Gould; 'show me exactly what to do.'

Thereupon the medical man instructed the millionaire in a variety of movements, such as flexing and extend the arms and legs, inflating the lungs slowly excluding the air, beating the chest with the hands, and bending the body sideways and backward. Next day, when his brokerage partners, Connor and Morosini, looked into his private office, where he sat at his desk reading letters from the morning's mail, they were astounded at the sight. Gould was going through a series of contortions that indicated nothing less than raving madness. His eyes were on the manuscript of a long epistle, and he seemed intently perusing it; but his puny physique was undergoing the strangest motion—his arms and legs extending one after another in all directions, and his body doing more genuflections than were ever conceived of a ritualist. Was he having a fit? No; his calm face indicated no agony or illness. Had he gone crazy? That was likely, the two partners thought.

"What is the matter, Mr. Gould?' said Conner, approaching rather cautiously.

'Is there something bad in that letter?' said Morosini.

'No, no,' replied Gould, setting an arm revolving like a wheel with one spoke and no rim; 'I'm exercising without loss of time.'

THURSDAY, JUNE 10TH, 1886.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

MAXWELL, the St. Louis murderer has been found guilty of murder in the first degree.

JEFFERSON County Demomcrats will hold their convention in Brookville next Monday.

OHIO is to have a home for the blind, Governor Foraker having appointed trustees and instructed them to erect the building.

THE Knights of Labor in convention at Cleveland, O., on the 28th, ult., decided to increase the executive committee from five to eleven members, with permanent headquarters at Philadelphia.

CHAIRMAN RYNDER, of the National Greenback Labor party, has issued a call for theState Convention of that party to meet in Harrisburg on the 18th of August, when they will nominate candidates for governor and other offices.

SENATOR KENNA, at a meeting of the Democratic Congressional Committee on Monday, formally accepted the chairmanship, and said that he was influenced to some extent by the publication of a statement that his reluctance arose from an apprehension of defeat for the party.

THE Democrats of Franklin county held their convention in Chambersburg on Tuesday and nominated a strong legislative and county ticket. Resolutions endorsing the National aud State Administrations were adopted and a feeling of good cheer prevailed among the members of the convention.

THE latest military tactic in Germany are infantry regiments mounted on bicycles and tricycles, and riding them in marching order. At Frankfort-on-the-Main the men are now being drilled to the use of these machines for military purposes. Should not wonder it the next move would be artillery regiments carrying their canons through the air in balloons.

GLADSTONE's Home Rule Bill was defeated by a majority of thirty in the House of Commons. England does not seem to be ready to give Ireland its rights, but the great question has at least been vigorously discussed and will and must be reconsidered in some future time. Gladstone's diplomatic foresight tells him that it is essential to England's welfare to yield in this reform issue and now that the agitation has once been started it will be taken up again, if not by the noble Gladstone, then by one who will take his place in this political battle. It is a question of liberty for Ireland and Ireland will not rest until it has gained the victory.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, whose career from the first was one of continued success and advancement until he reached the highest office in the gift of the American people, can now say that to the great honor of his station the greatest happiness of man's life has been added in his marriage to Miss Frances Folsom, his former ward. After the wedding, which occurred in the blue room in the White House, the distinguished couple went to spend the first few day's of their honeymoon in Deer Park, in the Allegbenies, about 2700 feet above the level of the sea, in a quiet and pleasant way. They expected to depart from there yesterday, Wednesday, and now the chief executive will again settle down to the functions of his responsible office.

THE Philadelphia Times in speaking editorially of Secretary Manning's resignation, alludes to him in the following terms of praise, which will be gladly echoed by all fairminded citizens:

The great business interests of the country, regardless of party affiliations, will rejoice that Secretary Manning has not been compelled the make his resignation of the Treasury portfolio absolute.

Mr. Manning is the one Cabinet officer whose administration of his most responsible trust has disarmed even the virulence of partisan criticism. His broad intelligence, his complete familiarity with the complicated questions relating to our revenue laws, his trusted fidelity to all official acts and his practical, common sense views of revenue and finance, have commanded the general confidence of the whole country, and his enforced retirement by reason of ill health would be profoundly deplored in every section and by all parties.

President Cleveland will be heartily commended for his refusal to consent to Secretary Manning's natural request for absolute retirement, and the country will gladly assent to his summer vacation, hoping that by the first of October he will be able to resume his duties. The Treasury Department is so intimately connected with the great and varied business interests of the country, now greatly disturbed by causes beyond government control, that it is of supreme importance alike to the administration and the country, to retain Secretary Manning who commands such general confidence from the people. He is now greatly needed at his post, but he can be much better spared for the summer months than to accept the experiment of a new Secretary of the Treasury.

CLERKS IN POLITICS.

Bureau Chiefs to See That the Civil Service Laws are Strictly Enforced.

Washington, June 6.—The determination of the President to carry out his policy with regard to civil service reform seems to have communicated itself pretty thoroughly to the heads of his departments and through them to the heads of bureaus. This appears more prominently just recently through applications for leaves of absence by the employes of the various bureaus. Some of these leaves were to take effect in September. In fact, most of the clerks postpone their summer vacation till the latter part of the season. By doing so they have hitherto been able to combine business of a political nature with their vacation. It is the determination of those who are in sympathy with the Democratic President to prevent as far as possible leaves of absence for political purposes. It is said that a number of these leaves have been requested through members of Congress quite recently, and the applications have been answered by the heads of the departments by requesting the member asking the leave to state whether it was for political purposes or not. If the leave was asked for the employe with the view to his assisting the Congressman in mending his political fences the leave would not be granted; if it was purely for recreation or personal business, there was no objection expressed as to the leave being granted.

Miscellaneous News.

Death of a Prominent Sunbury Lawyer.

Sunbury, Pa., June 4.—William Cameron Packer, Esq., son of Hon. John B. Packer, died at this place to day, after a lingering illness of some months. He was 34 years of age, and at the time of his death was attorney for the Philadelphia and Erie and Northern Central Railroads.

Grand Wedding at Williamsport.

Williamsport, Pa., June 4.—The social event of the season occurred last night. David J. Hill, President of the University of Lewisburg, was married to Miss Juliet Packer, daughter of Judge Packer and a niece of Governor Packer. The ceremony took place in Christ Church, this city, Bishop Robinson officiating. The newly wedded couple received their friends at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Catharine J. Packer.

Peach Trees too Full of Fruit.

Middletown, Del., June 4.—The howl of the "June drop" of peaches doesn't scare our growers worth a cent. They are hoping the drop will be many more rather than fearing it. Their trees are are too full, and could not bear up under the load of fruit even when it is half matured. The recent rain has been of great benefit, inasmuch as it prevented the curculio from getting his work in. About one week from now a fair estimate of the season's crop can be made.

Reorganizing a Coal Company.

Philadelphia, June 8.—The Clearfield Bituminous Coal Company which was organized in connection with the Beech Creek Railroad Company, will be sold on Friday next at Clearfield, Pa., under a judgement obtained against the company for $351,600, money looned by General Magee. Messrs. Gazzarn and Olmstead will attend the sale in the interest of the stockholders, and expect to purchase the property. If they do so, the company will be reorganized with General Charles J. Langdon as President, if he will consent to serve; if not, either Senator Peale or William D. Kelley will be chosen.

FIRE AT LEBANON.

Pennsylvania Nut and Bolt Works Destroyed by Fire.

Lebanon, Pa., June 6.—Shortly after 12 o'clock to-day fire was discovered in the machine shop of the Pennsylvania Nut and Bolt Works. The east wind blowing at that time gave the crackling flames great headway, and it did not take long until it reached the burr department. Here the flames soon had control of the oil tank, which contained 15 barrels of oil, and this kindled the flames with great rapidity.

The fire is supposed to have originated in the southwest corner of the machine department where oily cotton waste was laying and it is supposed became ignited by heat or the sun shining on it. The buildings were insured in the New York Pennsylvania Insurance Companies. The loss will be about $200.000 and will throw out of employment about 300 people.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS

NOTICE.—Sealed proposals will be received at the Commissioner's office, Bellefonte, up to 10 o'clock, a. m., Monday June 21st, 1886, for building the abutments for an iron bridge to be erected across Penns Creek at Greenbriar road in Penn township. Rupture

Dr. J. A. SHERMAN has returned from his trip to the City of Mexico and the West, and removed his office from 251 to 294 Broadway, New York. In Dr. Sherman's treatment there is no operation of any kind, no detention from labor, no danger of strangulated rupture, besides freedom from the injury trusses inflict. His Book, containing information and endorsements from Physicians, Clergymen, Merchants, Farmers and others who have been treated and cured, is mailed for 10 cents. Persons in circumstances to prevent them from availing themselves of Dr. Sherman's personal services should send for his home circular of advice and instruction. Remember, office 294 Broadway, New York, three doors above Reade street.

—As we go to press it is raining at a lively rate.

—June cherries are getting ripe and the crop promises to be large.

—Blue overalls with apron fronts sold cheap at Kauffman's store.

—Court granted license to W. S. Musser, of this town, last week.

—Did you ever see finer weather than we have had the past week?

—If you want fresh groceries go to J. W. Lose's store on Main street.

—Look out for the marriage of one of our young ladies in the near future.

—The plasterers are lathing John Kerstetter's new house on Penn street.

—Mr. James A. Wirt, of Boalsburg, was a welcome JOURNAL caller last Saturday.

—For want of space the Journal Store advertisement was crowded out this week.

—Gate posts seem to be the favorite spot of lovers to study the face of the moon just now.

—Rev. M. I. Jamison and family, from Clintondale, are visiting at Jacob Keen's this week.

—A list of Sheriff's Sales may be found under legal advertisements in this week's isssue.

—Mr. Ed. Miller, at present of Selinsgrove, visited his sister, Mrs. Dr. Frank, in this place a few days.

—Mrs. Uriah Spangler, of Kansas, is at present on a visit to her father, Mr. John Hosterman, near Wolf's store.

—The writer and family return their best thanks to Mrs. Samuel Weiser, for a magnificent bouquet of flowers.

—Mr. Ruhl, of Hartleton, was one of the visitors of town over Sunday, and the guest of his daughter, Mrs. A. J. Harter.

NOTICE.—Persons who ordered pictures enlarged from H. A. Grip, Tyrone, Pa., can procure the same at Kauffman's store.

—Mrs. Michael Seitz, and family, of Northumberland, spent several days with her mother, Mrs. Jesse Kreamer, on Water street.

—E. W. Mauck is making fence around his lot on Penn street and is getting ready for laying the foundation of a new residence.

—Give us a call before you take your orders for job work elsewhere. We can give you low prices and guarantee first-class work.

—Sheriff Musser's residence on Penn street received some extra touches of paint on Tuesday, which gives it a better appearance.

—The most expeditious way to get into "hot water" in this town is to be elected to serve as councilman. It is an enviable office!

—Next Sunday is Whitsunday, commemorative of the descent of the Holy Ghost upon Christ's disciples at the time of Pentecost.

—Messrs. R. B. & C. W. Hartman, the foundry men of this place, were on a business trip to Lycoming county on Monday and Tuesday.

—Mr. Charles Yeager and wife, of Mifflinburg, were the guests of J. W. Lose, last week. Mr. Yeager is a brother of Mrs. Lose.

—New Cabbage, Pine Apples, Peas, Bananas, and all kinds of fresh fruit can be had at D. S. Kauffman & Co's store on Friday and Saturday.

—Dr. J. F. Harter left on Wednesday afternoon to go a' fishin'. We understand that he joined a party from Lewisburg and that they will spend a few days along the mountain streams in the Loop. They will have a wet time of it.

—The plasterers having finished their job in Stover's new store room on Main street, that building will be ready for business in a few weeks.

—Millheim had quite a number of visitors in the last few weeks, all of whom seem to be delighted with and to enjoy their stay in town.

—Mrs. Robert Mills and children, of Lock Haven, were here a few days last week, visiting at the home of their relatives, Mr. G. W. Harter.

—W. L. Bright shipped another carload of cattle to Philadelphia on Tuesday afternoon. He had bought most of them in Nittany Valley.

—If you want to enjoy the luxury of using the best soap in this country, try Dreydoppel's Borax Soap, an article that has been tested by time and found to contain all the ingredients necessary for a soap that can be used for all purposes.

—Light Dresses are seasonable wear now, and the largest stock and lowest prices in this line will be found in D. S. Kauffman & Co's store.

—An exchange recommends sprinkling buckwheat flour over the plants as effectual in destroying cabbage worms. This seems a simple remedy and deserves a trial.

—When you expect to go away, or when you have visitors just please apprise us of the facts and the JOURNAL will be glad to furnish the news to the rest of mankind.

—Mrs. W. S. Musser and daughter are taking this morning's train for Mifflinburg to attend the marriage of Miss Kate L. Shriner, of that place, to a Mr. Chambers.

—Our band has voted to pay Coburn a visit next Saturday evening. They will leave here at about 5 o'clock and expect to give the people of that town a first class serenade.

—A pure and reliable remedy—a compound fluid extract of roots, leaves, barks and berries is Burdock Blood Bitters. They cure all diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys.

—Mrs. Housman and Miss Hattie Meek, of Altoona, paid a week's visit to their sister, Mrs. J. F. Harter, of Main street. They departed for their home yesterday afternoon.

—In Holland, Mich., C. J. Doesbury publishes the "News," and in its columns strongly reccommends Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for coughs, colds, sore throats, catarrh and asthma.

—P. S. Meyer filled up and leveled his yard on Penn street with rich ground and sowed it with grass seed. A new front fence will be the finish to the improvements on his premises.

—The first candidate for office was on the ground and made the rounds among us last week. The gentleman was Mr. J. C. Harper, of Bellefonte, with an eye cast prothonotaryward.

—Mine host Rook, of the National Hotel and D. S. Kauffman took a trip to Bellefonte on Tuesday. Presumably Mr. Rook acted Cicerone, as this was Kauffman's first visit to the county seat.

—One of the first arrivals on Monday was that of Mrs. H. J. Kurzenknabe, of Harrisburg, who came home on a visit to her parents, Mr. Jonathan Harter's. Lizzie was heartily greeted by her many friends.

—Mr. D. G. Smith, of Penn Hall, who taught the North street school last winter, was in town on Tuesday and remembered the JOURNAL with a friendly call. Always glad to see you, Domer; call again.

—Millions of us are billious. We are a billious race. Half of us are born billious, with a predisposition to dyspepsia. The best known remedy for billiousness and indigestion is Simmons Liver Regulator. Try it.

—On Tuesday the first load of lumber was hauled from Henry Whitmer's saw mill in Sugar Valley to Coburn by Wm. Ulrich, of this place. It is a solid day's trip, but Ulrich's four-horse team is fully equal to the task.

—John D. Snyder, of Woodward, is circulating a petition to the proper department for his appointment as store keeper of the Woodward distillery. The paper bears the signatures of some of the most substantial men in the lower valley.

—A number of families from town expect to take a trip to the celebrated Penn's Caves, about six miles west of this place, next Saturday. The party expect to start in the morning and spend the greater part of the day at the head of Penns Creek.

—The people of Millheim enjoyed a novel concert by our band last Saturday evening. The boys were stationed on the roof of the new hardware building and from their elevated position sent out sweet strains of music that could be heard all over town.

—The longest day's work is at present done by the busy farmer who toils on from morning till night. But when he has finished his day's labor he retires with the cheerful thought of having well done and fosters pleasant anticipations of a plentiful crop.

—The Christian Union, a prominent religious journal, not long ago contained an article entitled "How to pack a trunk." The publication of articles telling how to hang curtains, tack carpets and join stovepipes might prove a great help to suppress profanity.

—Mr. F. Catherman, of Northstreet, we are sorry to state is much indisposed by a troublesome cough arising from a bad cold. We trust that he will manage to git rid of his complaint before long, as his many friends can illy afford to do without his genial company.

LOST OR MISLAID.—Policy No. 18947, issued by the Penn Mutal Life Insurance Co., on the life of I. J. Grenoble. The finder will please return it to the undersigned. Application has been made for the issue of a duplicate.

23-3t I. J. GRENOBLE.

—A large number of our young ladies and gentlemen betook themselves to the mountains last Thursday to celebrate Ascension day by fishing for—don't know what, as they came back as empty as they went. But we may venture to say they had an enjoyable time.

—Pursuant to orders Street Commissioner Sankey opened the alley between South and Centre street on Monday morning and then there was war from the hill to Brookdale and "law" was expounded to the fullest extent. The old trouble—too many smart men in town.

—Every bottle of Arnica & Oil Liniment sold is warranted by the proprietors to give satisfaction or money will be refunded. For sale by J. Spigelmyer and D. S. Kauffman & Co.

—More people, adults and children, are troubled with costiveness than with any other ailment. Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters will cure costiveness and prevent the diseases which result from it. For sale by J. Spigemyer and D. S. Kauffman & Co.

—Mr. J. C. Hockman, of Franklin, Pa., came to town on Tuesday evening, to pay a visit to his parents and during his short stay did not forget to give the JOURNAL a call. Judging from Clevan's appearance Venango county air agrees with him.

—We are sorry to say that the attempt made last Saturday evening to organize the "Sons of Veterans" in Millheim was frustrated on account of the unwillingness of the Aaronsburg boys to come here. The supposition is that such an order will be started in that burg.

—The schoolboard of Millheim had its annual settlement last Monday afternoon and their financial statement is posted up in conspicuous places. That the board have been economical with the people's money can be seen by the nice cash balance in the hands of the Treasurer, viz: $197.

—Several loads of iron fence were brought up from the depot last week, which will be erected in front of Fairview Cemetery, being a continuation of the piece of fence already there. The whole length of the front will then be enclosed by this neat and attractive fence, giving it a stately appearance.

—A steel pen, which seems simplicity itself in construction, goes through from fifteen to twenty-five processes in the course of manufacture, and occupies from ten to thirty days to complete. And yet an Esterbrook Pen is sold at the Journal Store at one cent a piece.

—The undersigned gives notice that he has this day sold his stores at Millheim and Madisonburg to S. Spigelmyer, Jr., and employed D. L. Zerby collector of all accounts due J. Spigelmyer, Agent, which must be settled within ten days from date.

W. E. GHEEN

Millheim, May 31st, 1886.

—On Monday evening Prof. J. H. Feehrer, of Selinsgrove, passed through town, and stopped just long enough to leave a new piece of music, entitled "Shady's Quickstep" dedicated to the leader of our band Dr. J. F. Harter. He was on his way to Sugar Valley, where he has an engagement with the Boonville band.

W. C. T. U.—The members of this society will meet on Monday evening, June 14th, 1886, at the residence of Dr. J. W. Stam. All interested in the great temperance cause are cordially invited to be present, and are requested to bring their Gospel Hymns along.

Mrs. B. O. DEININGER, Pres.
Mrs. P. H. MUSSER, Sec.

—Cashier Walter is building a cistern on his premises on Penn street. Since he is the controlling stockholder of the Millheim turnpike company, he had the ground and stones which were dug out of the excavation hauled on the pike in front of his residence for filling purposes and thus he "hits two birds with one stone."

—Eye witnesses say it was amusing to see that cow run off with Bess Sturgis' little wagon on Tuesday afternoon. The cow had gained entrance into Walter's yard and was grazing when she got a hold of the string attached to the wagon and deliberately made off with it. She was caught in a neighboring alley and was relieved of her ill-gotten gain.

NOTICE.—A Select School will be opened at Aaronsburg on Monday, July 26th, 1886, to continue eight weeks. All persons desiring to attend will please hand their names to M. M. Musser, of Aaronsburg. Special attention will be given to such as are preparing for College or for teaching in the Public Schools. Terms to suit the times. For further information address the teacher,

M. O. NOLL,
23-6t Lewisburg, Pa.

THE LIST OF ACCIDENTS KEPT UP.—The calamity of broken limbs seems to be getting epidemical among the little boys of our town. On Tuesday forenoon, Clyde, the youngest of C. W. Hartman's children, fell from the table in the room and broke his right arm below the elbow. Dr. Frank was called to reduce the fracture and the child is doing right well. This is the third case of that kind which occurred in town during the past four weeks and parents can not be blamed if they are getting uneasy.

—We call the special attention of our readers to the advertisement of the new Penn's Cave Hotel. The hotel is situate within a few rods to the mouth of the Penn's Cave and has been built in such a manner as to make it specially adapted for a summer resort. The cave, which is rapidly becoming one of the most popular places of pleasure in the state, is under the management of the hotel proprietor, who has left nothing undone to accommodate his guests in a first class style.

BOROUGH LEGISLATION.—The town council of Millheim had their regular monthly meeting last Saturday evening and among other routine work, passed a resolution declaring the alley between Centre and South streets open, with instructions to the street commissioner to remove all obstructions. The resignation of Adolph Miller, as a member of the council, was not accepted. Frank Knarr was appointed collector of borough taxes. Notices were issued to the property holders whose boardwalks are defective to repair the same within ten days.

—Nearly all the boardwalks in town are giving out and our borough fathers will find it necessary to issue a general order to the freeholders of Millheim to lay new sidewalks before next fall. In speaking on this subject with one of the councilmen the other day he wisely proposed that notices should be issued about three months before, so as to give the people ample time to prepare for it and when all are ready, to do the work at once so that the walks may be properly graded. We hope the council will not delay this matter too long. Summer is the right time for such improvements.

—Survival of the fitest. Downs' Elixir has outlived every cough remedy simply because it is the best. For sale by J. Spigelmyer and D. S. Kauffman & Co.

—Fishermen should bear in mind that from the 1st of June to August 31, all net fishing (except for catching bait) is illegal, and any person found setting or using a net is liable to prosecution. All nets found in the river or creeks can be considered as lost property and taken by any person and held for the owner to call or handed over to the fish warden. The only legal fishing allowed is with rod, hook and line, and the wardens will hold all persons to that. It is also contrary to law to take a trout less than five inches in length.

—C. K. Sober, the crack shot, again distinguished himself on Decoration day, by his remarkable skill with the rifle. The following, which appeared in the Reedsville correspondence of the Lewistown Gazette, shows a splendid record:

After the decoration exercises were concluded on Saturday evening a large crowd assembled to witness the wonderful exhibition of glass ball shooting by C. K. Sober, of Lewisburg, Pa. The skill of Mr. S. is certainly high up in the art, and coupled with his different forms and manner of shooting we think his record made here stands unequaled in Pennsylvania. Following is the score. From right shoulder, broke 10, missed 0; from left shoulder, 10, 0; spring his own trap 5, 0; back to trap when sprung, 5, 0; shooting with one arm, 5, 0; single balls gun upside down, overhead, 7, 1; double balls, from right shoulder, 9, 1; double balls from left shoulder, 8, 2; gun lying on table when balls sprung, 5, 0; throwing gun up and turning it, 5, 0; back to trap, with gun between legs, 4, 1; single balls, right shoulder, barrels through cigar box, 7, 0; single balls, left shoulder, barrels through cigar box, 5, 0; double balls, right shoulder, barrels through cigar box, 10, 0; single balls, gun upside down overhead and barrels through cigar box, 9, 1; tossing up gun, turning once around, with barrels through cigar box, 13, 0; balls from two traps, 30 yards apart, stand on centre line, shooting from right and left shoulder, 39, 1; balls from two traps as above, with gun upside down, barrels through cigar box, 10, 0; single balls with Colt's lightning rifle, 8, 1. Mr. S. uses a 10-guage and 10-pound Parker gun.

Of Interest to Ladies.

The new treatment for ladies' diseases discovered by Dr. Mary A. Gregg, the distinguished English Physician and nurse, which has revolutionized the entire mode of treating these complaints in England is now being introduced into the U. S., under a fair novel plan.

Sufficient of this remedy for one month's trial treatment is sent free to every lady who is suffering from any disease common to the sex who sends her address and 13 2ct stamps for expense, charges, etc.

It is a positive cure for any form of female disease and the free trial package is many times sufficient to effect a permanent cure. Full directions accompany the package (which is put up in a plain wrapper) also price list for future reference. No trial package will be sent after Aug. 1st, 1886. Address, GREGG REMEDY COMPANY, PALMYRA, N. Y. 19 3m

Neighboring News.

SMITH TOWN.

Cultivating corn is now the farmer's principal work. Next will be haymaking.

Mrs. John Harshbarger is on the sicklist and unable to be out.

Edward Swartz, who had been working for J. C. Motz, at Woodward, came home last week to stay.

One of John Kern's horses is the victim of some disease and will hardly live.

Rev. Deitzler and lady spent Sunday in our midst.

That large dog spoken of in a former issue of the JOURNAL was fetched away by his owner, Mr. Samuel Wise, of Brushvalley.

Some of our farmers think the crows pull more corn than necessary and are making war on the black thieves.

William Huey shifted quarters from Millheim to Smith Town and intends staying here this summer. We bid him welcome.

Mrs. F. D. Luse and Mrs. Abs. Harter of Millheim, rusticated among us last week.

Those Sunday shooters, we hear, are going to thrash Jumbo for reporting them. They also make their brags what they might do with Sankey. What an idea! Two little boys trying to whip JUMBO.

AARONSBURG.

Johnny, what were you doing on that cherry tree? Cherries are too green to use.

Another wedding on the programme. Be ready boys, one and all, hip, hip!

Samuel Miller died on last Friday afternoon and was buried on the following Monday forenoon in the Lutheran cemetery, Revs. Yearick and Deitzler officiating.

The fellow that paid that nocturnal visit at Jacob Reed's on last Sunday night would better acquaint himself with the fact that a large savage dog holds the position of inside guard of the house.

We take the advantage of this opportunity to call the attention of relatives of departed friends to the present condition of the burial grounds of our town. All loose stones and other rubbish should be removed as soon as possible after burial. A stranger on decoration day remarked that a stone pile makes a very fine monument to mark the resting place of a departed friend.

A respectable number of St. Paul's Luth. church members and friends, paid Rev. Deitzler and his family an afternoon visit on last decoration day. Before the party left their houses they took into consideration the possible condition of the brother's larder and garner. To the surprise of the host and hostess both larder and garner were so well replenished that the wants of the family and faithful Billy were supplied for several months to come.

On last Friday afternoon while Mr. Nathaniel Boob was leaving town on horseback, in going up the hill at the east end of town, a little dog belonging to Aaron Weaver ran out at and frightened the horse, which became unmanageable at once. In attempting to dismount, one of his feet was held by the stirrup. The horse wheeled and ran at full speed back into town, dragging his rider for a considerable distance. Mr. Boob was picked up in a badly shaken up and bruised condition, but no serious results are expected to follow the accident. He was taken to his home by Mr. Weaver in a private conveyance. ANOTHER.

—We have just received a new lot of Silks. Ask to see them. D. S. Kauffman & Co.

COBURN.

Mr. Andrew Stover has the foundation for his new building completed.

Mr. Hosterman is building an addition to his new building. And thus our village is slowly improving.

Miss Lizzie Katherman and Miss Kate Hursh, of Mifflinburg, spent the Sabbath at the residence of W. H. Kremer.

Miss Myra Van Valin has gone to DuBois to spend the summer.

Mrs. Chesty Musser has gone to Boalsburg to spend several weeks visiting.

The Lutheran congregation of this place purpose holding a festival around the 4th of July for the benefit of the church, we are informed. Hope they will meet with success and realize a nice sum.

Business has been rather dull the last week on account of the farmers all being busy at home.

We had preaching twice on Sunday last, in the afternoon by Rev. Yearick and in the evening by Rev. Deitzler. Both these appointments always come on the same day, which, if one of them could be changed, would give us preaching about three times a month, where we only have twice now. We think it would make it nicer all around.

There must be unusual attractions down the railroad, from the number of people that walk out that way every Sunday. Is it the new distillery or the beautiful scenery which draws?

There is not anywhere much more beautiful scenery to be found, than we have here around our own beautiful village. VALE.

—Oh! Oh! This howling, jumping raging toothache! I would give anything for relief. Well it won't cost you much. 15 cents will get you a bottle of the Great Zingara Toothache Drops. Guaranteed. For toothache and neuralgia the Great Zingara has no equal. Keep them in the house, they may save you hours of agony. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

SPRING MILLS.

On last Saturday afternoon, while the base ball club of this place were taking a game of ball, Mr. Jno. Gray, a member of the club, took off his coat and vest and hung them on a fence near by, leaving a valuable watch in the vest pocket. When the game was over it was discovered that some villain had stolen the watch. A crowd of spectators had gathered to witness the game and it is thought that the thief took this advantage to get away with the watch. Hope the guilty parties may be brought to justice.

—A. Crownover, Saulsbury, Pa., writes: 'J. A. McDonald.

Dear Sir:—Your Liver Pills are giving good satisfaction here and there is quite a demand springing up for them. Please send me three dozen boxes at once, as I am out and some of my customers wont have any other.'

Comment needless. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

Rebersburg and Vicinity.

Mrs. Rosa Blair, of Mifflinburg, is at present here visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Kreamer.

Cornelius Bowersox, the Snyder county carpenter, who has the contract for building Jacob Gephart's barn, had the misfortune last Saturday, while hewing timber, to cut a deep gash in his knee with a broad-axe. Dr. Bright dressed the wound and the patient is about on crutches.

Mr. Ira Walker and wife, of near Freeport, Ill., are at present in this vicinity visiting relatives.

One day last week while Dr. Goodman, of Sugar Valley, who during Dr. Bright's absence attends to the wants of our sick, was out in the country to see a patient, his horse suddenly took a leap to one side of the road, upset the buggy, and badly demolished it. Fortunately the doctor escaped unhurt.

Mrs. N. W. Eby and Miss Sadie Bower, both of Woodward, spent last Saturday and Sunday in Brushvalley.

Last Saturday evening H. G. Royer's hireling hitched one of Mr. Royer's horses to a sulky and drove off to see his best girl. Having arrived at her place he proceeded to unhitch, and while doing this the horse took fright and ran off. It cleared a fence and when Clayton caught up to the animal he found that it had broken its leg, and had to be killed. This is quite a loss for Mr. Royer as it was a valuable mare.

Daniel Weaver's child, which had been so badly burned and of which I made mention in last week's Journal, I am glad to state, is slowly recovering.

Wm. Kreamer sold a fine horse to Geo. Kreamer, who is in the lumber business in Little Sugaryalley.

Mr. Ira Gramley, of Aaronsburg, and his associate, Mr. Wilson, are at present blowing out stumps with dynamite in Adam Bair's new ground. The stuff used is rough on stumps. They have already blown out over one hundred large pine stumps.

Wedding Bells—On the 1st instant Rev. Lenard married Mr. Howard Crape, of near Spring Mills, to Miss Jennie Stover, of Rebersburg. The happy event took place at the residence of the bride's parents. The Rebersburg cornet band were out and treated the couple to one of their fine serenades for which the groom rewarded them with a V. SQUIBOB.

—A BOTTLE of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial should occupy the handy corner of every travellers satchel. No prudent person will think of undertaking a journey involving changes of climate, diet and water, without first procuring a bottle. It never fails! It never disappoints! Money refunded in every case when a single bottle, as directed, fails to cure any case of cholera dysentery, cholera morbus, diarrhoea, cramps, pains in the bowels, or any intestinal irritation. Sold by all dealers.

J. B. Ard, Esq., of Pine was visiting in our village a few last week.

Our supervisor, Mr. Geo. Stover, has greatly improved the road leading to Coburn and it is no quandary now how to obviate mud holes. Nor do we have any fear of crossing the bridges, since they are so substantial.

John D. Snyder has his petition circulating for the vacant position, since Capt. Van Valin's discharge, of store keeper and gauger of the distillery here. We understand that Thos. Weaver is also an aspirant to the situation.

J. C. Motz's sheriff sale on Thursday brought quite a lot of strangers to town. We had presumed the buying would be confined to the one person, but a party from Union county bought some fine lumber at extremely low prices. In fact they bid on everything the sheriff offered for sale. Come again, boys. ARGENTI.

—Druggists as a rule are extremely jealous and careful of the honor of their profession, and are loth to praise a medicine which they do not from personal knowledge know to be a meritorious article. They all agree however, that for smallness of dose, easiness to take, an effectiveness as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders are the best and most desirable vermifuge in their stock, and do not hesitate to recommend them. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

An Indignant Englishman.

Clever Tom Whiffen, than whom there are no more dignified Pooh-Bahs and few better fellows, tells me this anecdote: Before the days of rapid transit on the Atlantic, English actors were few and far between in this country. In those times an Englishman in America was more or less a curiosity—as many of them are even now. In a company which was doing Shakespeare at one of the Boston theaters was an English actor named Coleman. He was an actor of the old school, and quite as tragic off the stage as on. His fellow-players chaffed him in the dressing-rooms on account of his being an Englishman, and particularly on the difficulty he experienced in the use of the aspirate. This had been done so much that the Englishman was roused to furiousness if any one dared to imitate his cockney misuse of the eighth letter of our alphabet. One morning he came down to breakfast at the Tremont House in a not very pleasant frame of mind. He had been chaffed pretty hard the evening before, and in addition had not slept well. The waiter—a darkey of the darkest hue—laid the bill of fare before him and awaited his order.

'’Ave you hany fresh heggs this morning?' asked Coleman.

'Yes, sah,' answered the darky '’Ow'll you ’ave ’em cooked, sah? Boiled, scrambled, fried, homelet; hany way you like, sah.'

Coleman turned quickly, gave the waiter a sharp look, frowned, and then, as though making up his mind that his ears had deceived him, indicated his preference in the way of 'heggs.'

'Hany think else, sah?' asked the waiter. 'Cawn beef ’ash is very nice sah, dis mawnin'. Bit of fish, sah? ’Alibut steak, sah, finnan ’addie, fresh cod——' Coleman's face had turned purple. He jumped to his feet, caught the waiter by the collar, and held him at arm's length.

'What do you mean, sirrah?' he roared, 'by imitating a gentleman's speech. I ’ave a mind to throttle you, you himpertinent scoundrel!'

'Hi begs yer pardon, sah, but hi really can't ’elp it sah. Hi'm an Englishman myself, sah.'

'You lie, you villain!' bellowed Coleman. 'You've been paid for this!' By this time some of the other guests had intervened, and the darkey, pale with fear, was released from the actor's clutches. The head waiter vouched for the fact that the darkey was an Englishman, born at Putney, and Coleman, restored to his equilibrium, settled down to his breakfast again—but with a change of waiters.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria,

An Order.

An ex-army surgeon tells the following story of General Buell: "On one occasion, near Cave City, he ordered the men kept away from a fine spring, but the guard was overrun by thirsty men, and Buell rode with his stern, official dignity to the spring to stand guard himself. He wore at the time a little straw hat and his fatigue uniform. A large, energetic six-footer came up, very thirsty and impatient to fill his canteen. He rubbed against Buell as he passed, and stepped with one foot in the water to fill his cup. Buell said quietly, but decidedly: 'Take your foot out, sir.' Still stooping the six-footer looked up, and said: 'You go to Greenland's icy mountains. I don't want any quartermaster's clerk ordering me around.' For an instant the Commander of the Army of the Ohio was stunned by the unexpected reply. Then he said quietly but emphatically: 'General Buell orders you to take your foot—out—of—that—water.' The man gave the General a glance of unmistakable admiration, and said quickly: 'I'll do it, sir. If General Buell would order me to jump head first into a cannon, I would do it.' Out comes the foot. Why didn't you say so before?' This reply bothered the General a good deal, but he said nothing."

Too Late.

There was an exultant smile on his face as he walked into the office of a well-known capitalist, and there was a proud ring in his voice as he said:

'For twenty years I have lived from hand to mouth, waiting for something to turn up. It has finally come. I have made a discovery which, if you will back it with a few hundred dollars, will give us both fortunes.'

'State your case.'

'Well, sir, I have discovered that banana peelings can be utilized for all kinds of table jellies.. A peck of old peelings can be made to bring forth twelve tumblers of the finest current jelly, and the profit is—'

'Hold on right there,' interrupted the capitalist; 'you are just two years too late. A chap in Chicago not only discovered that, but he found a way to work in apple rinds and cores and orange peel, and we can't infringe on his patent.'

'But—'

'It's no use. I'd like to see you get along, but you must drop that. Don't be discouraged, however. Perhaps you can discover a way to make pressed corn beef out of old boot legs. All you want is a machine to run in the streaks of fat.'—Detroit Free Press.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

THE GREAT Unfailing Specific FOR LIVER DISEASE.

SYMPTOMS: Bitter or bad taste in mouth; tongue coated white or covered with a brown fur; pain in the back, sides, or joints—often mistaken for Rheumatism; sour stomach; loss of appetite; sometimes nausea and waterbrash, or indigestion; flatulency and acid eructations; bowels alternately costive and lax; headache; loss of memory, with a painful sensation of having failed to do something which ought to have been done; debility; low spirits; a thick, yellow appearance of the skin and eyes; a dry cough; fever; restlessness; the urine is scanty and high-colored, and, if allowed to stand, deposits a sediment.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR, PURELY VEGETABLE, AN EFFECTUAL SPECIFIC FOR

Malaria, Constipation, Sick Headache, Nausea, Mental Depression, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Jaundice, Colic, Bowel Complaints, Etc., Etc., Etc.,

Is generally used in the South to arouse the Torpid Liver to a healthy action.

It acts without disturbance to the system, diet or occupation. It regulates the Liver, and causes the bile to act as the purge. The excess of bile being removed, a tonic effect is produced and health is perfectly restored.

The Regulator is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. For all diseases in which a laxative, alterative or purgative is needed it will give the most perfect satisfaction. The Cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World!

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'
Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR

For the cure of Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and pureness. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.
